

My Angel

Today is so sunny that I had to bring the dog into the house to make he feel comfortable, strangely the flowers you left in the garden are still alive, I have taken care of them as you told me, there isn't a day that I don't talk with them, although it still makes me ridiculous. Your family still frequents me, they invite me to all the meetings of the year but I never go, except for the Christmas, because you made me promise that I would take a gift to all your nephews and nieces, don't worry they aren't like the gifts of before, now if they're the ones they want, imagine, your youngest niece thinks I'm Santa and always asks me about you, I always tell her that you're making toys or that you're looking for new recipes to make cookies, thinking about it I think I have the fault of believing that I'm Santa, but I don't regret anything, her smile and her innocence reminds me so much of you, she always waits for me and not for the gift if not because she really misses me because instead of going to see what I brought her, she asks me how I've been, and that was only done by you.

But anyway, do you remember our first date? I was very nervous because I didn't know how to treat you. You were so beautiful, educated, witty and innocent. I remember that when we arrived at the field of flowers you were so happy, your eyes shone because of the many colors of flowers that you saw, but none of them compared to you, you were embarrassed by all the compliments that I gave you. I still go every month to that same field, although it is only grass, there are no flowers like before. I remember that when I proposed to you you shed tears of emotion, I swear I thought you were going to say no because of all the guys who flirted with you, even though you always told me you weren't interested. That day was one of the best days of my life because I was finally going to have someone by my side who loved me unconditionally, even though we were so different we always understood each other, I really liked it when I slept with you because you caressed my hair while I was lying on your chest and you whispered that you loved me, I had never felt so complete until that moment, I thanked the universe for having agreed with you, so much so that I still don't understand what I did to deserve you, I had always been someone so indifferent with life and although I'm still an atheist, I hope that the God you always prayed for us is taking better care of you than me.

How I miss you darling, this time without you has seemed eternal, not seeing you every day hurts me more and more, I miss hugging you, kissing you, telling you that I love you, giving you flowers or simply being in this same place where there are still flowers as if you were still there. How could you abandon me and not take me with you, since you died I have waited impatiently for my death, but I think that every time I want it less it comes closer.

But today I feel more tired than usual, I feel like my eyes are heavy, but I had to come see you, I'll rest here with you for a bit and then I'll go back to the house.

When I opened my eyes again it was already dark, until in the distance I saw how a light was coming towards me, I stood up quickly to prepare to fight, but by surprise it was you, with that beautiful light blue dress and those sneakers that you loved to wear, when I met your eyes I ran to hug you and you told me with your beautiful voice that it was time for me to accompany you but I told you that our dog was still at home, but with laughter you told me that he was already waiting for us in our new home. What a joy I felt when I got my beautiful angel back.